Biodata: Umi Kalsom Masrom, Zailani Jusoh, Kamran Mir

Umi Kalsom Masrom is a Senior Lecturer at Universiti Malaysia Pahang Al-Sultan Abdullah (UMPSA), with research interests spanning digital interactive content, task-based language learning, technology-enhanced teaching, and second language acquisition. She holds a doctoral degree from UMPSA and a master's degree in teaching English as a Second Language (TESL) from Universiti Putra Malaysia (UPM). With over two decades of academic experience, she has established an exceptional track record in teaching, research, and consultancy. Recognized for her dynamic, technology-driven pedagogy, she has successfully secured research grants, authored numerous publications, and delivered impactful training programs for diverse audiences.

Zailani Jusoh is a Senior Lecturer at the Faculty of Languages and Communication, Universiti Sultan Zainal Abidin (UniSZA), Malaysia. She has been teaching ESL for more than two decades. Among her research interests include teacher professional development, and reading assessment.

Kamran Mir is an EdTech Researcher and Trainer. He's currently working as a Senior Research Assistant at TU Dublin and also working on a project by SFI's d-real centre for research training. He has worked with Allama Iqbal Open University, Pakistan as Assistant Director IT for more than 10 years which is one of the mega open universities of the world. His area of research revolves around H5P, Immersive Learning, GIS, Spatial Learning Analytics and Distance Education. He has received several international awards and research fellowships including one Gold Medal and three Silver Medals from the Asian Association of Open Universities.