

Biodata: Nallely Garza Rodríguez & Ma. Guadalupe Rodríguez Bulnes

Nallely Garza Rodríguez holds a doctorate in Bilingual Education granted by Texas A&M University-Kingsville, a Master's Degree in Higher Education, and a BA in Applied Linguistics. Currently, she is the coordinator and a full-time professor of the major of applied linguistics in teaching and translation at UANL. She is currently a candidate member of the National System of Researchers (SNI) in Mexico and the president of MEXTESOL Chapter Nuevo León. Her research interests are in teacher education, teachers' identity and emotions, and evaluation in EFL contexts.

Ma. Guadalupe Rodríguez Bulnes. Ph. D. in Education (University of Birmingham, United Kingdom); M.A. in Higher Education Teaching and B.A in English/Spanish Translation (Universidad Autónoma de Nuevo León). She has taught English and Spanish as foreign languages in Mexico, USA and England. She also participated in an academic exchange in France at the Université D'Aix-en-Marseille. Her research centers are foreign language education, intercultural competence, and the internationalization of Higher Education. She is an academic consultant for national and international accreditation organization as well as a certified Oral Speaking Examiner for the Certificate in Advanced English (CAE).