

Bio-Data: Luis Javier Pentón Herrera & Erica Rivera-Vega

Luis Javier Pentón Herrera is a Dissertation Core Faculty in the Department of Educational Leadership and Administration at American College of Education and an adjunct professor at George Washington University and University of Maryland Global Campus. In addition, he serves as Maryland TESOL's Past President (2019-2020) and as co-editor for the TESOLers for Social Responsibility Newsletter. Dr. Pentón Herrera's current research projects focus on the language and literacy experiences of adolescent and adult Indigenous Latinx students in U.S. classrooms and on students with limited and interrupted formal education (SLIFE). To learn more about Dr. Pentón Herrera, please visit his website <https://luispenton.com/>

Erica Rivera-Vega is an educator from Las Marías, Puerto Rico. For the past years, she has been an English professor for Ana G. Mendez University in both Maryland and Orlando campuses. Erica has a bachelor's degree in English Linguistics, a certificate in Secondary School teaching, a master's degree in English Education, and a graduate certificate in learning design and technology. She has taught high school students, freshmen, and adults during her professional career. Her current research and publication interests revolve around second language acquisition, instructional design, linguistics, and education.