

Biodata: Emre Basok

Emre Basok is a doctoral student in the Foreign, Second and Multilingual Language Education program at Ohio State University. He received his M.A. in Teaching English as a Second Language (TESOL) at the University of Texas at San Antonio. He teaches Advanced Academic Writing courses at OSU. His interests in research lie in language assessment, language policy and planning, language maintenance and revitalization, language teacher education and collaborative writing. His current research explores the effects of collaborative writing on international students' academic writing development.