

Biodata: Md. Nasim Fardose Sajib

Md. Nasim Fardose Sajib is an Assistant Professor and Head of the Department of English at the World University of Bangladesh. He has nearly a decade of experience at the tertiary level as an expert on English

Linguistics, development of English language skills and English Language Teaching. His research interests include skill-based language teaching, sociolinguistics, teaching methodologies, and material development. Driven by his passion to contribute to the development of English language teaching and learning, he is currently focusing on examining the current situation of these fields with a special emphasis on digital technology in EFL. He has several publications in national and international journals.