

Biodata: Natalie-Jane Howard

Natalie-Jane Howard is a General Education lecturer, teaching undergraduate students from a variety of disciplines, at the Higher Colleges of Technology, United Arab Emirates. She has a wealth of experience teaching second-language learners, across all age ranges, in South Korea, the Dominican Republic and the Middle East. She regularly holds professional development workshops for faculty and is actively involved in course design, assessment, and materials development at the division level. Her research interests include teacher motivation, professional identity, subjectivity, educational technologies, and socio-materiality.