

Biodata: Mohammad Kazemian-Sana'ati & Fatemeh Khonamri

Mohammad Kazemian-Sana'ati is an Associate Editor of MEXTESOL Journal. He has taught English in different proficiency levels at Iran Language Institute (ILI) in adults' department. As well as ESP/EAP courses at University of Guilan and Guilan University of Medical Sciences. His recent published papers have appeared in Asia TEFL, Education and self-development and TESL-EJ journals. He presented different papers in a number of national and international conferences. He recently presented a paper at the 2nd virtual conference on English Language Testing Society (ELTSociety) in the United States. His areas of research interests are intercultural studies, language testing and assessment, interfaces of SLA and language testing and assessment, and CALL.

Fatemeh Khonamri is an assistant professor of applied linguistics, where she teaches in undergraduate and graduate TEFL programs, at University of Mazandaran, Babolsar, Iran. Her recent publications have appeared in The Language Learning Journal, Asia TEFL Journal, TESL-EJ Journal, MEXTESOL Journal, Education and self-development Journal and Iranian Journal of Language Teaching Research. Fatima presented numerous papers in a number of national and international conferences. She recently presented a paper at the 2nd virtual conference on English Language Testing Society (ELTSociety) in the United States. Her areas of research interests are applied linguistics, language testing and assessment, SLA theories, and intercultural studies.