

Biodata: Son Van Nguyen & Anita Habók

Son Van Nguyen works as a language lecturer and teaches different English courses at Thuyloi University, Vietnam. He is currently a PhD candidate at Doctoral School of Education, University of Szeged, Hungary. He is supported by Stipendium Hungaricum scholarship. His research interests focus on TESOL methodology, learner autonomy, motivation, metacognition, self-efficacy, and educational stakeholders' beliefs. He has published his work on Heliyon journal, RELAY journal, Electronic Journal of Foreign Language Teaching, Education Sciences, and VNU Journal of Foreign Studies.

Anita Habók is an Associate Professor at the University of Szeged, Hungary. She received her PhD in Education in 2009 and earned her habilitation in 2018. She was awarded János Bolyai Research Scholarship of the Hungarian Academy of Sciences (2017-2020). She is currently teaching courses at tertiary level at the University of Szeged. He supervises theses at BA, MA and doctoral level. Her research interests include research on language learning strategies, reading strategies, vocabulary learning and special educational needs.