

Biodata: Masoumeh Adavi, Mansooreh Amiri, & Nargess Nourizadeh

Masoumeh Adavi has an MA in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) from Lorestan University, Khoramabad, Iran. She has been teaching General English to EFL learners for years and currently is one of the full-time teachers of English in Iran language institute. Her main research interests include Language teaching to children, psycholinguistics, teacher education and second language acquisition.

Mansooreh Amiri is an Assistant Professor at Lorestan University, English Department. She has a PhD in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) from Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Iran. Her main research interests include sociolinguistics, testing and assessment, Computer Assisted Language Learning (CALL) and first and second language acquisition. She is also interested in investigating the pedagogical implications of Artificial Intelligence (AI) in English Language Teaching.

Nargess Nourizadeh is an assistant professor at Lorestan University, Khormabad, Iran. She has a PhD in TEFL from Alzahra University and has explored local views towards language teaching materials development. For her MA thesis at Tehran University, she carried out research on critical thinking skills for teachers. Her current research focuses on using local potentials in English language teaching and is interested in teachers' professional development and teacher education issues. She is, additionally, examining the use of artificial intelligence in English language teaching.